

...

Peru Study Abroad

First stop..Lima!!

We explored the city!

I tried IncaCola
for the first time!

We drank LOTS of coffee!

●●● We went to class!

"Success is not getting the correct result;
success is understanding how you got it."
- Paco

Food

Class Dinners

The squad at Tanta!

Trip to the #4 restaurant in the world, Central!

CENTRAL

Trip to Paracas and Ica

Next stop...
Cusco and Machu Picchu!!

I tried Guinea Pig!

Some of what I learned:

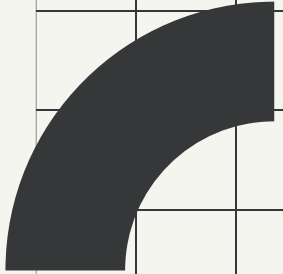

- Peru has a deep and rich history which was new to me since the United States is only 300 years old.
- Some Peruvian slang I learned was “bestial” and “chochera.”
- There was little to no poverty or homelessness in Inca culture because of their effectiveness in storing food!
- The Peruvian culture has family/community values rather than being focused on the individual like the United States.

Some things that surprised me:

- Water is not free in Peru and drinking water from the tap is not recommended.
- There are tsunami warning signs on the beach!
- The chaotic driving where signs are just a suggestion.
- I felt very safe walking around the city...even by myself.
- There wasn't toilet paper in Cusco!
- The rock beaches instead of sand!

Thank you!

It was an amazing trip!